President McVey's Annual Pre-Christmas Message To Student Body Slated Today

"Between Us," Will Be Given In Memorial Hall At General Convo Third Hour

STUDENT PROBLEMS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Phi Beta Kappa Awards Annual Prize Freshman With Highest Standing

"Between Us," Dr. Frank L. McVey's annual pre-holiday address to the student body, will be given at the last general convocation of the year to be held at 10 a. m., today, in Memorial Hall.

All classes meeting during the third hour today will be dismissed for the convocation. At this time each year President McVey speaks informally to the student body concerning current problems of the University, presenting the student's side of the question as well as that of the faculty.

Dr. McVey's talk, usually of an advisory nature, will probably also concern the attitude of the students when they return home for the holidays, some of them for the first time since the beginning of the present semester.

He is expected to mention topics of current interest, such as athletics, scholarship, morals, and the state legislature as well as other problems concerning both the faculty and the students.

The discussion probably will include the problems concerning the furnishing of the new Student Union building now rapidly nearing completion.

Dr. R. H. Weaver, president of the Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, will make the annual award of the organization, consisting of $20 worth of books, to the student who as a freshman attained the highest scholastic standing for the preceding school year.

YWCA SPONSORS YULE SERVICES

Candlelight Ceremony To Be Held In Patterson Hall; Recreation Room Is Scene Of Rites

In the holly-decked recreation room of Patterson hall the third annual candlelight service sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. will be held at 10:30 o'clock, Thursday, December 16.

A trio consisting of Cordelia Forrest, violin; Harriet Henderson, piano; and Elizabeth Tillet, piano, will accompany the carols which will be sung by the 220 girls of Patterson and Boyd halls.

Singing "O Come All Ye Faithful," the girls will light their candles and file into the recreation room. The singing will be led by Dorothy Murrell and a Christmas story will be read by Mrs. Lola Robinson, Guignol business manager.

Six YWCA Members To Represent UKY At National Meet

Six girls will represent the University Y. W. C. A. at the national assembly of student christian associations to be held at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, from December 27 to January 1.

Together with representatives from the Y. M. C. A., Anne Lang, Rae Lewis, Mary Jane Roby, Anna Jane McChesney Janet Fergus, and Runelle Palmer, will meet with students from all parts of the United States in a discussion of various national and international questions when the assembly convenes.

Miss Elizabeth Cowan, Y. W. C. A. secretary, and Bart N. Peak, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will accompany the group to Miami. Dean Sarah G. Blanding will be one of the leaders in the education on "Students and the Educational System."

REPRESENTATIVES SELECTED

Y. M. C. A. members who will represent the University at the National Assembly of Student Christian Associations in Oxford, Ohio, include Thomas Spragens, Campbell Miller, David Lewis, Thomson Bryant, William Craig, and one other person who has not yet been selected. The assembly will meet at Miami University from December 27 until January 1.

Niel Plummer Appointed Acting Department Head

Journalism Professor Will Serve In This Position Until June 1938

Appointment of Prof. Niel Plummer, assistant professor of journalism, as acting head of that department was made Tuesday at a meeting of the executive committee of the University Board of Trustees in the offices of Pres. Frank L. McVey.

Professor Plummer, appointed to act in this capacity until June, 1938, succeeds the late Prof. Enoch Grehan, founder and head of the department since 1914. A new member of the faculty, to fill the vacancy in the department, will not be named until the end of the present semester, according to Dr. McVey. A native of Beaver Dam, Kentucky, Professor Plummer has a master's degree in political science from the University. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, has served as reporter, state editor and city editor of the Lexington Herald, and was the first publicity director of the University's athletic department. He is at present working on a Ph. D. degree from the University of Wisconsin.

After graduating from Louisiana high school, Professor Plummer received a bachelor of arts degree from the University in 1928 and the master's degree in 1932. As a student of the sophomore class in 1925, he became a member of the news department of the Lexington Herald.

He resigned in 1936 from the Herald staff, after serving as state editor and city editor. At the same time he accepted a position as publicity director for the athletic department of the University and part-time instructor in the Department of Journalism.

In 1934 he was named as fulltime instructor, and in January of 1935 was made assistant professor. For the last few years he has devoted his entire time to the department. Professor Plummer married Marjorie West, daughter of Dr. Edward West, dean of the College of Commerce, in June, 1935.

For the last three years, he has been working on a Ph. D. degree from the University of Wisconsin, where he has attended summer school. Now he is writing a dissertation on "Henry Watterson, As a Political Leader," in preparation for this degree.

School Children To Be Entertained

A Christmas party for 140 children of Lincoln school will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday, December 21, at the school by the Pukin club and the YM and YW freshman groups. More than $30 was obtained at the finals intramural boxing and wrestling bouts Tuesday night and will be used for the party. Many other students have contributed to the party fund.

MINER MAKES TALK ON SALESMANSHIP

Salesmanship and distribution from a psychological viewpoint was discussed by Dr. James B. Miner, head of the psychology department, Tuesday, at a meeting of the Lexington Kiwanis club, at the Lafayette hotel.

Student Failures Attributed Largely To Inadequate Pre-College Training

By ALLENBY E. WINER
Many of the student failures at the University can be attributed largely to the inadequate pre-college preparation in certain subjects afforded Kentucky high school pupils, Dean T. T. Jones stated recently.

Dean Jones, in the course of an interview concerning the growth of education in the South, pointed out that many Kentucky students majoring in such technical studies as engineering, law, or medicine, for which a thorough basic knowledge of the various sciences is imperative, were unnaturally retarded in scholastic progress because of a deficiency in these subjects. He remarked further, however, that in the past fifteen years, the efficiency of instruction in the better state high schools has been improving parallel to the rapid growth in

Puffing Profs Perform For Coeds In "Big Apple" At Patt Hall Dinner

With cries of "truck to the right, let's truck to the left," the second of a series of Christmas dinners, held at the girls' dormitories, came to an end Tuesday night when members of the faculty showed the girls that they could also do the "Big Apple." Professor Dantzer, Dr. Brady, Jimmie Shropshire, and others revelled in the "Big Apple" when called upon.

Another feature of the dinner was the election of the "Patt Hall King." The two candidates nominated were Elmer "Bromo" Sulzer, and Jimmie Shropshire. After a popular vote of the guests the honor was conferred upon Mr. Shropshire.

Other entertainment during the evening was supplied by the girls from the dormitories. A specialty tap number was given by Jean McGeerle, Carolyn Sigler, and Mary Nell Gillespie gave their interpretation of a hilly billy band. Their instruments consisted of a washboard, harmonica and bones.

Estaline Lewis, and Eudora Vance did a tap number to the tune of "East Side West Side." Betty Carol Rhodenmeyer, sang "The Moon Got In My Eyes." Mary Duncan did a specialty talking number to music, "When Apples Grow In Lillac Trees." A piano solo was given by Ermagard Kruse, and Virginia Dyer entertained with a tap specialty. Grace Silverman was the toast-mistress of the evening. About thirty members of the faculty were present.

MANNING SPEAKS AT MEET

Prof. J. W. Manning, of the political science department delivered an address before a community meeting sponsored by the city council at Williamstown on Thursday evening, December 16. He was accompanied by Mayor Reed Wilson and Carl Wachs of Lexington.

their number. Approximately 400 additional high schools have been constructed in that time, he said, increasing the total to over 800. In reference to the large enrollment of northern students at Kentucky and other southern universities, Dean Jones described the recent trend as indicative to the economic status now prevalent throughout the nation. Costs for higher education in northern sections are equally high with prices of general living standards, in comparison with a proportionally lower scale in the South. Students in northern universities are not only faced with greater tuition and living costs, but higher outlays for recreation, Dean Jones added. The only recourse of the average wage earner in the North, whose son or daughter is desirous of a college education, is the South.

Dean Jones ascribed the fast-in-

UK TRUSTEES OK CONTRACT BID ON SCIENCE EDIFICE

Reliance Engineering Company Has Been Awarded Job On Bid Of $22,888

MAY INCREASE AREA OF BOTANICAL GARDEN

Walk And Roadway Planned To Extend From Memorial Hall To Limestone

Acceptance of the bid of the Reliance Engineering company of Charlotte, N. C. for the contract for heating and ventilation for the biological sciences building now under construction, was affirmed at a meeting of the executive committee of the University Board of Trustees held Tuesday afternoon. The bid, which was the lowest submitted, was $22,888.

Due to the large number of members of the board that were absent from the meeting, originally scheduled for the entire Board of Trustees, was turned into an executive committee meeting, with other members of the board in attendance.

Plans for a combination side walk and roadway from Memorial Hall to Limestone street were approved and the question of increasing the area and care of the Botanical Gardens was referred to Dr. Frank L. McVey for consideration.

Three names, selected by a vote of the graduates, were named at the meeting for nomination to a position as a member of the board. They are Dr. George Wilson and E. S. Dabney, both of Lexington, and Marshall Barnes of Beaver Dam. One of the candidates will be appointed to the post by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

Sabbatical leaves were granted to Dr. T. D. Clark, assistant professor of history; and to Dr. Louis Pardue, assistant professor of physics. The resignation of W. L. Browning, county agent for Powell county, was accepted.

Six Commerce Pupils Pledged To Honor

The Alpha of Kentucky chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary Commerce fraternity, announces the pledging of John Loser, Paducah, Kentucky; Rae Lewis, Lexington; Evelyn McAister, Clifton, New Jersey; Warren Steckmetz, Valley Stream, New York; Frank Hill, Sharpburg, Kentucky; and Belmont Ramsey, Dawson Springs, Kentucky. A dinner will be held some time in January at which time these pledges will be initiated into the fraternity.

One of the above named pledges, John Loser, has attained a perfect "straight A" record at the University of Kentucky.

AG STAFF TO HOLD CHRISTMAS DINNER

A Christmas "pitch-in" dinner party will be held for all members of the College of Agriculture faculty, the experiment station staff, and the agricultural extension and clerical workers, at 6 o'clock, Friday, December 17, in the Livestock Pavilion. Guests of honor will be Dr. and Mrs. Frank L. McVey and Dean and Mrs. Thomas P. Cooper. Refreshments for the party will be supplied by each organization and department in the College of Agriculture who will donate the food on the menu for the party. All members of the staff and the clerical force are invited to attend.

creasing number of women students to the demands of modern industry. "The college-trained person is still preferred in industry. While fifty years ago only men were desired for specialized employment, today women are occupying a very influential station in the industrial set-up." Many schools, originally operated for men exclusively, have been forced to throw open their doors to accommodate the great influx of women students. The Universities of Virginia and Mississippi were cited as examples. In conclusion, Dean Jones stated that, contrary to the suggestion of statistics which show 65 per cent of women students scraping the campuses for a collegiate husband, a majority of co-eds want to acquire the ability to be self-supporting.

Ruppleless Wildcats Wallop Berea, 69-35, In Court Bow; Blues Face Tough Holiday

Locals Meet Three Strong Teams During Christmas "Vacation;" Cincy Here Saturday Night

CENTENARY TEXANS ARRIVE WEDNESDAY

Rupps Gun For Sugar Bowl Bout With Pittsburgh, December 29

By MARVIN GAY

Claw them Panthers! The battle cry of Coach Rupp's Panther thirsty Wildcats will echo from the Alumni arena during the Yuletide holiday.

Work and more work. This is the vacation is store for the defending Southeastern conference champs, as they strive for a Sugar Bowl triumph over Pittsburgh's mighty crew.

In the short existence of the New Orleans athletic spectacle, no Southern hoop fave has ever managed to take the scalp of a Yankee invader. But the 'Cats, despite the pessimism of Tudor Adolph, believe that the day of triumph is rapidly approaching.

The Ruppmen collide with what they hope and believe will be two tuneup foes, before taking on the Smoky City quintet.

A clash with the University of Cincinnati Bearcats will take place in the 'Cat lair Saturday night. The Rhinelanders, coached by Rip Van Winkle of Kentucky Wesleyan fame, are expected to give the Kentuckians a stiff tilt, as they have already vanquished several opponents.

Centenary College's Gentlemen, who held the Champs in check the first half of a contest last fall, again journey to the Bluegrass, December 22, to attempt to add several scalps to their Louisiana trophy collection.

While these tilts are expected to add to the felicity of Central Kentucky hardwood fans, the 'Cats will be satisfied with nothing but a well chewed Panther pelt for a completely blissful Christmas.

Every Wildcat, from the last sub on the third team to Captain Walker, is supremely confident that the South's basketball prestige will have risen several notches after that eventful night, December 29.

McLaughlin Funeral Services Conducted

Funeral services for Matt J. McLaughlin, brother of Miss Marjorie McLaughlin, assistant professor of Journalism, were held Wednesday morning at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Joseph Klein, pastor of the church. Burial was in the family lot in the Lexington cemetery.

Mr. McLaughlin died Monday at the St. Joseph hospital, after being struck by an automobile several days ago.

Law Headquarters Will Be Shifted

Time for changing quarters from the old law building to the new has arrived for the students of the Law College. Starting Wednesday, December 15, trucks began to move out the old books and all of the fixtures from the basement.

All of the books in the offices were scooted down the chute on the stairway in huge boxes. Students are making their way to their last classes in the old building by climbing over pulleys, books, and boxes.

After the Christmas holidays the law classes will be held in the new modernistic building. The old building will be used as the University dispensary.

Holidays Begin Saturday At Noon

Christmas holidays begin officially at noon Saturday, December 18, and end at 8 a. m., Monday, January 3, it was announced yesterday by the registrar's office. For each class absence the day before or after the holidays an extra credit and one extra point will be added as requirement for graduation.

The Seasons Greetings To Students and Faculty Of The University Of Kentucky

The staff of THE KENTUCKY KERNEL has asked me to extend greetings to the student body and the faculty of the University of Kentucky in connection with the holiday season, and I am glad to do so.

The closing week before the holidays has been one of unusual weather, making it difficult to get to classes and move across the campus from place to place. I appreciate the patience and cheerfulness with which students made the best of conditions and have attended their classes as far as possible. This shows something of the pioneer spirit.

I wish for all the students and staff of the University and their families wherever they may be, a pleasant and happy Christmas and that this Christmas may be the joining of kindred spirits and the exchange of good will and affection, so that families may be united and greatly pleased over their reunion.

The spirit of Christmas is not made by gifts and the exchange of expensive articles, but rather by good will and affection, and it is in this spirit that I wish all a very happy time and a return to the University in good health and spirits.

Porter Grant Quits 'Cat Coaching Post

Young Flank Mentor Goes To Auburn To Assume Higher Position

Porter Grant, assistant varsity football, has resigned his position with Kentucky to take up new duties at his alma mater, Auburn, the athletic department announced Tuesday.

In 1934, Grant joined the Wildcats at the invitation of Coach Wynne under whom he played for three years at Auburn.

Since coming to Lexington, the Auburn star has served in the capacities of end specialist, scout, and contact man.

Recognized as one of the best ends produced in the Southeastern conference, Grant has been sought by his school for more than a year. The pressure reached a maximum Tuesday and Grant wired his acceptance.

At Alabama Poly, the popular young mentor will serve as assistant varsity football coach, business manager of the athletic department and secretary of the Alumni association. He will work under Jack Megagher, Wynne's successor, also an employer of the Notre Dame system.

Grant left for Alabama Wednesday afternoon. He will spend the holidays in his home at Dothan, return to Lexington at the end of the month for a visit and then start his new assignment January 1.

No rumors for a successor have emanated from the University's athletic office to date.

Grant, a Sigma Nu, graduated from Auburn in 1933, a major in architecture.

ARCHEOLOGICAL FILM SHOWN AT MEETING

"Shell Mounds on the Tennessee," a two-reel film, was shown at an open meeting of the Lambda chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma, national honorary physics building. In connection with the showing of the film, Prof. W. S. Webb, head of the physics department and an active worker in the TVA archeological research, delivered a lecture. The film was recently released by TVA.

Kernel College Night Offers "100 Percent Laugh Bill"

"Forty Naughty Girls," "Living On Love," With "American Toreador" Comprise Giggle Fest

Two full length comedies will feature the last Kernel "College Night" before the Christmas holidays tonight at the Strand theatre, it was announced yesterday by Manager J. D. Ensminger.

"Living On Love," with James Dunn, and "Forty Naughty Girls," with Zazu Pitts and James Gleason, are the pictures. In discussing the show Mr. Ensminger said it

Patt, Boyd Hall Coeds Will Hold Childrens' Party

Patterson and Boyd hall girls will entertain fifty children ranging in age from 4 to 13 at a Christmas party to be held in the recreation room of Patterson hall at 3 p. m. Friday.

A truck from the buildings and grounds department will collect the children and bring them out to the hall. Their names have been supplied by the family welfare group of which Miss Buckingham is in charge.

Presentations that have been furnished by the girls in the dormitories including clothing, toys, fruits and nuts will be given to each child.

The room will be decorated with Christmas greens and a gayly-trimmed tree will be at one end of the room.

The girls on the committee for the party include Bobbie Mays, Taylor Bess Rollins, Mildred Jones, Betty Alexander, Josephine Gridelli, Alberta Adams, Jean Becket, Vera Gillespie, Boyd Alexander, Beatrice Monk, and Kitty Wooten.

Court Of Appeals To Hear Students

Contests for the selection of the four University law students, who will argue a case before the Kentucky Court of Appeals at Frankfort next semester, are now being held.

The four honored men are eventually selected from forty men that participate. The forty are divided into sets of four, and each set has a question for argument, which they bring up before the University Court of Appeals. From these men are selected the eight who rank the highest. These arguments take place during the students' second year.

In their senior year at the University these eight men are to conduct two arguments and the four highest of this group are to argue the case before the Kentucky court. This is the first year for this plan. The four highest men are selected from the senior class only.

was a "100 per cent laugh bill." Students presenting campus coupons to the Strand box office before 8 o'clock tonight will be admitted for the regular matinee price of 16 cents. A coupon for College Night will be found elsewhere in today's Kernel. Two students can gain admission on one coupon.

The third chapter of "American Toreador," the old silent serial that has been presented on previous College Nights, will also be shown. A special band short and a cartoon comedy will complete the bill for College night.

McBrayer's Kittens Bury Little Hill Billys, 58-26, In Dazzling Passing Exhibition

BALLET BY GRIDMEN DELIGHTS BLEACHERS

Red Hagan And Tub Thompson Pace Kentucky Scorers

Kentucky's conference champs tore the lid off the 1937-38 basketball season Wednesday night by slaughtering Berea's Hill Billys, 60-35, in a game that saw the Wildcats work sloppily in spots and glitter in others. The opening attraction of the doubleheader featured the Kittens in a 58-26 show as they completely outclassed the little Mountaineers.

Sandwiched between halves of the varsity game was a dancing exhibition put on by seven football players for the benefit of the University's swimming team. The muscle-bound fluttering did much toward delighting the 1,500 fans who turned out for the evening's entertainment.

Berea played ball with the Ruppmen for the first five minutes and gave indication of making things tough for the locals. The Blues were ahead, 6-3, when Red Hagan jogged into the game replacing Jim Goodman, one of the three sophomores who started the skirmish. Once Smokey grabbed the ball the score started rolling Kentuckyward. And when Hagan started hitting, Tubby Thompson began performing, likewise.

During the final ten minutes of the game the 'Cats rammed 31 points down the basket's throat. There were times during this span when the Rupps worked brilliantly. Berea was lost and merely finished the first round in a frantic race. At the half time the score read, 37-13.

Paul McBrayer, frosh coach, mentored the Wildcats during the game because Adolph Rupp was confined to his home with illness. Mac kept a steady flow of substitutes romping into the game but could not keep the scoreboard quiet.

Marion Cluggish, about as tall as a pole vaulter, got into the battle and lifted the spectators out of their chairs as he became comically intimate with the hoop. The Blue forwards looped long leaves at the strings and counted on Cluggish to leap up and guide the shots into the goal. One shot was too accurate and Clug merely patted the ball on the back as it zipped through the cord.

The customers were pleased with the show and applauded his every effort around the hoop. In burying the visitors, McBrayer used 14 men, all of whom flashed mid-season form. He started a trio of sophoms, Goodman, Denham and Rouse along with the veterans Thompson and Capt. Rice Walker, who tried his hand at guard for the first collegiate time.

Against the Wildcat subs, Berea came to life and tallied 22 points in the second reel. Most of these were chalked up by Deaton and Ratliffe, two small burly boys, who specialized in one hand push shots. But the Blue lead was never threatened.

Ralph Jackowski, the meteoric rookie, made his local bow and gave signs of becoming one of Rupp's defensive strong arms. Jack also has a good eye and can develop into a top-notch player.

Anyone desiring to have their mail forwarded to them during the holidays may arrange for this service by stopping at the University postoffice and leaving their forwarding address.

All boys having any experience with foil, epee, or saber are urged to contact C. W. Hackensmith at the intramural department in regard to coming out for the fencing team.

The University Men's Student Council will meet at 4 p. m. Tuesday, January 4, in Dean Jones' office.

A meeting of all actives of Phi Sigma Alpha, political science fraternity, will be held at 1 p. m. Friday, December 17, in Room 202 of the Administration building.

A Thought About Christmas

all points on the compass.

The Christmas vacation invites a two-fold service. First, it offers a student the opportunity to renew and to strengthen his friendships back home and to associate intimately with his family; secondly, the resting spell gives him ample time to breathe easily and to revive his pre-semester energy for the oncoming final examinations.

During the holidays, it would be advisable to fulfill both these self-obligations, for they will have an effective bearing on the future. A fellow can never have too many friends, and can never be too prepared, mentally and physically, for his academic pursuits.

During our stay this year at the University, perhaps many honors have crowned our person. We may, on the campus, be president of a prosperous and recognized club, or may have been selected for some prized position by our classmates. To us at the University, these feats may seem worshipable and we behave accordingly. But in our home town, we're still Johnnie, used to get spanked for roller skating in the street, or for batting baseballs through the neighbor's window. Campus achievements mean mighty little to the people who are interested in the real progress of our character.

If our attitude on the campus is one of swash-buckling aloofness, let's remember to remove the disguise when we reach Main Street this Christmas. For the home town folks know us and, upon seeing the New Us, they are likely to comment critically on a non-existent University personality reformation program.

Above all, let us engage the holidays in re-kindling the affections of our family. Since early September most of us have been living parts of college life and we have been in a condition that tends to breed independence.

Yet, when we reach home, one swift thought will demolish most of that new-founded self-reliance. In the end, in most cases, it is father who pays for our time in school. While at home this Christmas we might try to attain the status of one of his best friends in addition to being his son or daughter.

As next month draws to a close, the last quizzes of the semester will pour down upon us. While at home during this vacation we might spend our idleness profitably by scanning the term's work, or writing, in short stages, book reports and term papers. The hush and lack of pressure should augment our mental and physical stamina for January's sheepskin trials.

And while we watch the tongues of flame at the Christmas fireside, let's listen to the blessings they speak. My health, my family, my friends, my University.

We should dedicate Christmas day to reviewing the opportunities, the life, and the scholastic facilities to which we can avail ourselves.

Through the columns of this paper, the entire editorial and advertising staff of THE KERNEL extends its sincerest season's greetings to the University and student body.

A Tribute To A Friend

THE following tribute to the late Professor Enoch Grehan was received yesterday by THE KERNEL from Professor Edward Saxon, one of the many who knew and loved Kentucky's genial journalist. Professor Saxon is a member of the faculty at Transylvania University.

Scrap Irony

By HARRY WILLIAMS

IT'S REALLY pretty silly; this business of setting a new press record each year. For instance we're writing this column on Wednesday for publication on Friday. And for no reason other than beating last year's record. If the thing is allowed to continue, why, in 1970, they'll be getting the last edition ready about Armistice Day, or thereabouts. No sense in it, no sense at all.

We were in a downtown men's shop the other day trying to buy a shirt. We thought we'd like a shirt; the one we have is becoming a bit worn, and we heard two of the clerks talking. They said that women bought polka-dot ties for their husbands and for their men friends in general. This struck us as odd, because there is probably nothing that men dislike more than polka-dot ties, unless it's polka-dot mufflers. This idea that women have about men liking polka-dots should be corrected. Men absolutely loathe polka-dots. There are cases on record of men who went about buying up polka-dot ties and burning them by the thousand. In some states the giving of a polka-dot tie for Christmas is considered grounds for justifiable homicide!

One case in particular that we recall is that of Bunbury vs. Bunbury (52 L. R. A. 302) in which Mrs. Bunbury, a perfectly sane woman, gave her husband, Herbert, that was Mr. Bunbury's first name, a polka-dot tie for Christmas and Mr. Bunbury killed her with an axe. The case was in all the papers. You probably remember it, but we feel that we should review the thing for the benefit of those who didn't hear about it.

As we have already mentioned, Mr. Bunbury killed her with an axe and later stuffed her into a clothes hamper. (The part about the clothes hamper doesn't matter really, but it must have been rather a feat for Mr. Bunbury since he had but one arm). After a few months the smell got about, and some people discovered Mrs. Bunbury in her little clothes hamper and called the police. Poor Mr. Bunbury was arrested and placed in jail. He pleaded guilty and claimed justifiable homicide, but the judge didn't think so, and they hanged him.

A few years later that same judge received a polka-dot tie from his wife who was in Omsk, which is in Siberia, and he flew all the way to Omsk in order to shoot his wife. They shoot people in Siberia constantly and therefore no one noticed the incident, but when the judge returned he reversed his decision in the Bunbury case, in which he said he was extremely sorry about hanging Eustace's father and that if he could do anything for Eustace he certainly would.

Eustace wrote back that he would like an electric razor, he had always wanted an electric razor, and the judge sent him one. The razor wouldn't work though, and Eustace had to send it back to the factory. The people at the factory were apathetic about the whole thing, so they kept the razor and sent Eustace his money back. (Of course it wasn't really his money, but they didn't know about the judge and all.)

Eustace, who by the way was an imbecile, spent the money for lemon drops and became ill. He died in February of that year and the judge sent him a wreath or roses. That's about all there is of the case. Have we wandered?

Miss Mimi Wiedeman, she of the raccoon coat and mittens, suggests that something be done about ventilation in some of the buildings. She says that she feels sleepy. She told us about it in Dr. Allen's physiology class the other day. There were forty people in the room and all the windows were down. The heat was pouring out of the radiators (the central heating plant was out-doing itself in the matter) and Dr. Allen was talking about potassium or something. Some good soul raised a window about an inch and Dr. Allen said, "No drafts now, we don't want any pneumonia."

While Lexington was on ice a few days ago, we heard this little story about a man who walked fourteen blocks home without falling and then went to sleep in a chair. The chair was a rocker and he tipped over backward, fell on his arm and broke it in three places. Can you imagine anything more discouraging?

He now can see
And eloquently describe
The celestial pageantry
And Christmas tree
In heaven.

O happy thought!
His sharp transition
Is with wonder wrought.
As he with other worthies meet
And kneel together
At their Master's feet
To express their adoration,
Not with type or pen,
But in song, the song of peace
And good-will to men.

—Edward Saxon.

SIDESHOW

By DON IRVINE

(The last suggestion Prof. Enoch Grehan made concerning this column was that something about Christmas be written in it. The result is below. And although he did not live to read it, the following paragraphs are respectfully dedicated to the memory of "Uncle" Enoch, the genial Kentucky gentleman who for years guided the destiny of the Kernel.)

The reader will forgive me if for the first time, in the following column, I make extravagant use of the personal pronoun.

NO MORE heart-tugging reminder of the swiftness of the passage of youth exists than the emotional depreciation of Christmas. With pungent witfulness we realize that we do not feel about it as we once did. All too soon we have grown up. Out of those sunny childhood years we can catch vagrant memories of that day of days, recalling our tremulous feelings, the warm spicy smell of a cedar tree, the mysterious and alluring packages that nearly drove us mad with excitement. Sometimes, with the playing of an anthem or with a certain juxtaposition of thoughts, we can reclaim for a moment the old delightful atmosphere of former Christmases; but it is soon gone. The spirit has cooled in spite of ourselves, and never again can we be children. Presently even that music which once enchanted us will lose the power to assemble the memories that lie folded in the past...

It was snowing, on the earliest Christmas that I can remember. The ground was white and big flakes kept whispering down after me. I was five years old and intensely excited by it all. I insisted that some fruit be set out for Santa Claus (in that and succeeding years I suffered from an inexplicable obsession that he would be hungry when he arrived at our house) and exacted the promise that I could stay awake later than usual. I was just nodding to sleep when a group of carollers came to the door, and swathed in blankets I was taken to the window to watch them sing. They stood in the yard, the big lazy flakes powdering their garments, and sang rather well, as I remember. It was the first time I recall of hearing "Silent Night."

I was at the model airplane age. For weeks before Christmas I had tormented my family and friends with a desire for one that had a propeller and would fly in circles. In an ecstasy of apprehensive hope I went to bed on the night before Christmas and did not sleep a wink. In those days Christmas dawned always arrived with nerve-racking slowness. When daylight finally did come, I leaped out of bed and ran to the tree. Lying next to a stack of books which all looked alike was a magnificent silver monoplane. My shrieks of joy must have aroused the whole countryside.

The airplane was wrecked by midnight. I still have the books.

It was Christmas Eve, some three or four years ago. A cold, spiteful rain was pelting down on the translucent streets. A bunch of bundles soaking under my arm, I stood downtown waiting for a bus. All day it had rained without spirit, and now the drops came down with a smacking sound that told of their changing to sleet. Above, the garish strings of colored lights swayed hopelessly in the December wind.

Suddenly a new sound rose out of the intermingled noise of traffic, a thin, sorrowful little chirp. Looking down, I saw in a corner of the wall the smallest kitten I had ever seen. His tiny bedraggled body was huddled next to the stone, and his round grey eyes looked pleadingly, heart-rendingly, out of the darkness. Too small to know what to do, too young to do ought but cry, the damp little bit of fur was hidden fearfully in the farthest part of the corner. He mewed again, a powerless little squeak of dismay, and I bent down to stroke him. As my fingers rubbed the tiny wet head, he put out his bright, darting red tongue and licked his coat. Then all of a sudden he became frightened at something. With infantile awkwardness, the terrified little creature bounded out across the rain-swept pavement and into the shining street. In a moment it was all over.

Christmas had lost its flavor.

And so the years wheel on. Now and then some transient vestige of that lost effulgent glory brushes by and for a second I am small once more. At such moments a deep nostalgia for the childhood I shall never live again gnaws at my feelings, and the tyranny of Time strikes twofold at my heart.

The Campus Gossip

By CHARLIE GARY

"Sally Let Your Bangs Hang Down"—And so the most dignified members of the faculty took heed and trucked and susie-que to their hearts content at the Christmas dinner given at Patt hall Tuesday night. The stars of the trucking contest were Professor Dantzler, Mrs. Giles, and Jimmy Shropshire, who made such a hit with the coeds that they elected him King of Patt Hall. The roof was almost raised when Professor George White Pitman taught the youngsters how the Charleston should be done.

To the accompaniment of grunts, groans, thuds of leather on bare flesh, thumping of bodies on canvas, and cheers and jeers of a tightly-packed, blood-thirsty crowd, the intramural boxing and wrestling finals came to an exciting finish Tuesday night in the gym. Even in such an atmosphere, courtship was not neglected by some couples. Ann Trent appeared unconscious of anything except Harold Bush, her escort. Even when "Nasty" Sims, who is making a strong bid for the Trent affections, did his bit in the ring, she appeared entirely unconcerned as to the outcome of the bout.

Jimmy Groseclose was sadly bemoaning the fact that he had no pin to adorn the dress of "Blone Terror" Edna Hill, all during the pugilistic encounters. Delta Chi G. W. Kurachek attended the fray looking very lonely indeed without his better half, Leisla Moran, who decided to remain indoors and study rather than see the blood-shed.

Double F. Davis is making quite a play for Margaret Greathouse, who happens to be the flower of "Tinker" Dean's heart. 'Tis said that "Tinker" likes the interference no little bit.

The following is a very old whim, but it hasn't been tried here for a long time. It is a list of songs, old and new, which have a very definite meaning to the person involved.

"Silent Night"—A date with Dot Woods and Peggy Clark.
"You Can't Stop Me From Dreaming"—Eddie David.
"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree"—Margaret Abel and Paul Durbin.

"Little Brown Jug"—Phil Delta Theta.
"An Old Flame Never Dies"—Mariam Gardhouse for Harold Bush.

"Alone"—Betsy May.
"I Still Love to Kiss You Good Night"—The whole student body.
"Nancing in the Dark"—John Morgan.
"Me, Myself, and I"—Virginia Richey.
"Hot Lips"—Billie Vance.
"I'm Looking for Love"—Officer Kelly in Botanical Gardens.

"Amour Toujours"—Ed Mueshler to "Frenchy".
"It's Love I'm After"—Slick Taylor.
"Mama I Want to Make Rhythm"—Nasty Sims.
"Fooling Myself About You"—G. W. Kurachek.

"They Can't Take That Away From Me"—Theme song of Leisla Moran.
"Wanted"—Dave Rogan by all co-eds.
"Let's Have Another Cigarette"—Red Simpson.
"Until the Real Thing Comes Along"—Louise Watts.

"I've Got Horses, I've Got Numbers on My Mind"—Dick Colbert.
"If It's the Last Thing I Do"—Andre Bowne.
"With Plenty of Money and You"—John Le Stourgeon and Helen White.

"You're Gonna Lose Your Gal"—Austin Triplett.
"Tea for Two"—Ben DeHaven and Beau Brummel.
"Hold Your Man"—Martha Kelly.

"The Lady Who Couldn't Be Kissed"—No such animal.
"Shanghai Lil"—Doug Montondo for Lil Warwick.

Chio Yuletide Celebration
Chio Omega actives and pledges had a pre-holiday Christmas party Thursday night.The house was attractive with poinsettias and holly branches. A tree in the hall was decorated with lights and tinsel. Gifts were arranged at the base of the tree.Betsy Allen presented the gifts to the actives and pledges. A buffet supper was served, after which the guests danced.

KD Christmas Tree

Epsilon Omega of Kappa Delta entertained with a Christmas party at the chapter house at six o'clock Thursday night. The house was decorated in holly, mistletoe, red candles and a large lighted Christmas tree.A buffet supper was served to actives, pledges and alumnae who were present. After the supper, gifts were exchanged among the girls, and the housemother was presented with a traveling bag as a gift from the chapter.

Alpha Xi Christmas Party

The actives and pledges of Alpha Xi Delta had their annual Christmas pajama party at the house at eleven o'clock Thursday night.
There was a lighted Christmas tree around which the gifts were arranged. After an exchange of gifts refreshments were served and carols were sung.

SAE Party

A Christmas party was held Thursday night for the members and pledges of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. A Christmas tree gift exchangewas conducted and a comic skit staged by the pledges.
Mrs. Ballard Luxon, housemother,

INTRAMURAL

By JOE CREASON

With their appetites for gore whetted to a fine edge by eight bang-up wrestling exhibitions, approximately 1,500 pop-eyed punch and groan fiends howled their approval as 14 fisticuff artists slapped through their paces in the Intramural department's final boxing and wrestling card of the season held Tuesday night in the Alumni gym.Wrestling had moved along very modestly with only a fair round of enthusiasm being drawn from the fans when the bell ushered in the light-heavyweight strain between Doyle, SAE, and Independent Geary.
This bout soon had the spectators on their feet as both men bounced each other all over the ring. The bout finally terminated with Geary on top after two minutes and 45 seconds of furious grappling. Then Simpson, SAE and Hinklebein, Sigma Chi, Wildcat grid luminaries, held the center of attraction in the drew the crowd's delight as theywent through a series of flip-flops with almost professional deftness.
Both men found the confines of the ring too small and most of the tugging was outside the roped inclosure. Hinklebein finally wrestled the winners trophy with a time advantage of two seconds.

Durbin Beats Beatty

The enthusiasts had scarcely readjusted themselves to their seats when they were again yanked to their feet by the opening punch-fest which sent 125 pound defending champion Durbin against Delta Chi Beatty. Beatty showed grim determination to slug it out with Durbin, who brought a trickle of blood from Beatty's nose early in the first round with a flurry of rights. Both men collided in the center of the ring and slugged toe to toe until sheer exhaustion sent them staggering away. A desperate last round rally netted Durbin a close decision.Then ATO Posey and SAE Dave Rogan kept the punches flying in the light-weight finale, won on decision by Posey. Both men waged strictly offensive warfare, with Posey's sneaking left jab connecting enough times to gather the decision.Shanklin Has Close Call
The first real upset was turned in by Kellond, Phi Kappa Tau fighter, with a decision over ATO Warf in the 145 pound class. Warf showed the effects of not fighting and his timing was bad and most of his licks over-shot their mark.Another defending champion, Henry Wallace, Kappa Alpha 155 pounder, emerged the victor over Pole, Pi Kappa Alpha. Early in the third round Wallace tagged Pole with a long over hand right. This blow sent Pole to his knees for a count of three and brought a gush of crimson to his face but with an effort he regained his feet and carried the fight to Wallace for theremainder of the scuffle. Then came a hay-making party sponsored jointly by Independent Gough and Shanklin, Alpha Gamma Rho. Both participants threw the leather with great abandon and when either connected with one of the wild licks it was with bone-crushing vehemency. Shanklin was finally awarded the bout after three giddy rounds but the decision was alternately booed and cheered by the spectators.
It remained for the Winchester brothers, 175 pound Ralph and heavyweight Frank, both Independents, to furnish the only wins via the knock-out route. Ralph polished-off Alpha Gamma Rho Stokes

HOTEL LAFAYETTE

This poor old grad, in his freshman daze,
Adopted studious thoughts and ways,
He crammed his Turret Top with fact,
But never learned how one should act.

It's simple arithmetic that the more cars General Motors sells the greater this organization grows. And the solid fact back of that growth is this: General Motors cars must continually offer more in terms of extra value to win those sales. It is only because General Motors is great that it can maintain the research and improvement program responsible for such modern betterments as the Turret Top, the Unisteel Body, No Draft Ventilation, Knee-Action and advanced Hydraulic Brakes.

BULL PEN

By GEORGE H. KERLER

ONCE in a while you run into a fellow who you just can't help but like. He has a way of talking and a funny outlook on things but he always impresses you as a guy you can count on and whose judgment is as sound as gold. You chat with him a few minutes, laugh at his descriptions or sympathize with his troubles. But you always anticipate anxiously your next conversation with him. He is as genuine the first time you meet him as he is the fiftieth time. When you leave his presence, the world seems a little more kindly and cheerful.

Such a fellow is Porter Grant who pulled up his Kentucky stakes Tuesday afternoon and went back home to Auburn.

Porter occupied one of those many unglorified roles here. He was Coach Wynne's right hand man. He wore a baseball cap on the practice field. He led the footballers through limbering exercises. Though out of active competition for four years, he possessed as much agility and trimness as the most conditioned athlete. And during scrimmage he followed the play and pointed out with faultless simplicity just what his boys did wrong. In his unpublicized job, he made fair ends of boys who had played very little football, he harvested high school talent for the approval of the department, and won himself unconsciously so many friends that his leaving Lexington is little short of an outrage.

Blessed with a keen, analyzing mind, Coach Wynne delegated him to scout many of Kentucky's opponents. That Wildcats failed to win most of their games is no reflection on Grant's spying ability. Ask any player and they will tell you that they had worked against every enemy offense and defense before the games. Grant could not stop touchdowns though he knew how to if the Wildcats carried out instructions to the letter.

Why did he come to Kentucky? Because Coach Wynne, who tutored him during the seasons of 1930-31-32, believed that Porter Grant was the best end he had ever seen. When Grant graduated from Auburn, he worked as varsity end coach there until he heeded the pleas of his former coach 'way up in the Blue Grass.

Porter John Hancock a Kentucky contract in January, 1934. He was to serve as assistant varsity coach and worry about the ends. Every man he has been directly affiliated with swears by Grant as a gridiron god. And deeply grieved today over his departure are the ends who will be Grantless next season. And the same can be said for the rest of the team and coaches.

Disagreeable as his leaving is, all you can do is congratulate the guy for he is going into a much higher position at his alma mater. At Auburn they have molded the athletic department and the alumni association into one body. And they think enough of Grant to request that he be in command of the whole project. Out on the Plains he will serve as assistant varsity football coach, business manager of the athletic department and secretary of the alumni association.

Though he disliked leaving Kentucky, the Auburn position offered him security. Here at Kentucky he worked on a one year contract. The future was unpredictable. Now at his alma mater, he has a guarantee of solidity.

When the Wildcats lost a ball game no one felt worse over the shortcoming than Porter. He was a tragic figure, hat slanted on the back of his head, cigarette in his fist, but never uttered a cross word. When the whipped Cats were tugging off their pads, he stalked among the perspiring players and said something encouraging. I have seen his battered ends, after listening to his words, break into tears. They hated to lose because they hated to play on a team that Grant helped coach... and, in losing, dejected their teacher.

In Nashville, Birmingham, and Gainesville, where the lobbyists knew Porter only as an incomparable football player, the hotel philosophers have only praise for the Auburn star. His name in the Southeastern conference is what the Lord's is to a preacher.

And so, P. G., you might like to understand that the whole Kentucky football club, though not a bit agreeable toward your switch, says "good luck" in your new venture.

If you made 500 friends while you were in Lexington, Auburn can count on 500 new rooters.

Omicron Delta Kappa, campus big shots' fraternity who sponsored the basketball doubleheader Wednesday night, wish to thank Frenchy Demosiey and Bernie Shively, who reffed the frosh and varsity games respectively, and the student body for its cooperating patronage. When the ledger was locked, the night was pronounced as highly successful.

If you have boxing aspirations as a member of the University's ring team, make sure you don't enter the Golden Gloves tournament this winter. For at the Southeastern meeting last week, officials ruled that outside competition (Golden Gloves) puts a man on the ineligible list.

'CATS-BEREA

pleading by the grandstand, appeased the crowd by popping in a crisp shot.

In the opener, the Kittens salted away the Berea juniors in convincing fashion. With Jackson, Huber and Farnsley leading the basket assault and Ernie Jefferson maneuvering expertly on the pines, the frosh were never in trouble.

The dazzling passing of the McBraymen, under command of Frank Moseley filling the freshman coach's throne, gave satisfying assurance to Wildcat followers. There seems to be little to fret about for the next three years.

Most of the assemblage came out to observe the ballet dance put on by a septette of gridmen. The pigskin gents practiced their routine five times before appearing in public. Garbed in swirling baby blue skirts and cotton sleeveless gym shirts, complete with bosom, the football Apollos flitted about with stuttering grace while the audience howled in glee. They performed everything daintily even to the extent of showing their U. K. A. A. bloomers to the bleachers.

Miss Pig valiantly thumped out piano rhythm to the barefoot boys with rogue on.

Extend Sincere Holiday Greetings

May Your Holidays Be All You Wished For

When you come back to Lexington in 1938 we will have what we believe to be the finest array of attractions we've ever offered.

HERE'S WISHING YOU ALL THE HAPPIEST
HOLIDAY SEASON
EVER —

Camels

MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS

Give Camels for Christmas! There's no doubt about how much people appreciate Camels—the cigarette that's made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS. A gift of Camels carries a double greeting from you. It says: "Happy Holidays and Happy Smoking!"

(right) The famous Christmas package, the Camel carton—10 packs of 20's—200 cigarettes. You'll find it at your dealer's.

Prince Albert

THE NATIONAL JOY SMOKE

If you know a man owns a pipe—you'll be making an appropriate selection if you give him a big gift package of PRINCE ALBERT. Prince Albert's as mild a pipe tobacco as ever delighted a pipe-smoker. It's easy on the tongue—doesn't bite. It's extra cool, thanks to its "crimp cut." And it's tops for mellow taste.

(right) A pound of Prince Albert in a glass humidor that keeps the tobacco in prime condition and becomes a welcome possession.

(above) One pound of mild, mellow Prince Albert—the "biteless" tobacco—placed in an attractive Christmas gift package.
